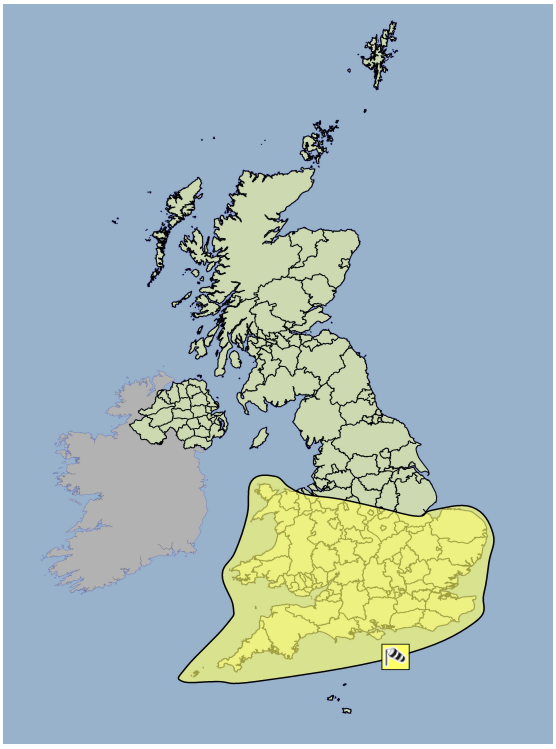
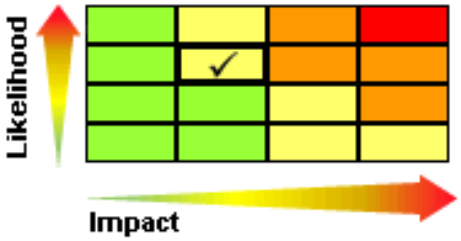
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A deepening area of low pressure will track northeastwards across England and Wales today, with strong winds developing on its southern flank. Coastal areas will tend to be windiest but some strong gusts are also likely inland, especially in association with showers.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Wind

Valid from 11:00 on Sun, 10th Aug 2014 until 20:00 on Sun, 10th Aug 2014

Winds have already picked up across Cornwall, and a swathe of strengthening westerly winds will extend its way northeastwards across many other central and southern parts of England and Wales through today. Gusts of 40-50 mph are possible inland, perhaps as high as 60 mph in some exposed coastal locations.

The public should be aware of the potential for some minor disruption and difficult driving conditions given the unseasonably strong winds.

Wind speeds will tend to moderate from the southwest later this afternoon and evening.
